

West Coast builder BCCI Construction Company joins GIS / STO family of companies

Merger expands BCCI Construction Company's reach beyond the Bay Area

San Francisco, CA/New York, NY (May 16, 2019) – Today BCCI Construction Company and Global Infrastructure Solutions (GIS) announced that the California-based commercial construction firm will join GIS and the Structure Tone Organization (STO) family of companies. The merger formalizes an existing and successful relationship between STO and BCCI, increasing the geographic reach for both companies and providing BCCI with access to the organization's global network and resources.

“The Structure Tone Organization has been a trusted partner of ours for over 25 years, and we share the same dedicated focus to client service and seamless project delivery,” says Michael Scribner, BCCI Construction Company CEO. “Formalizing our existing partnership expands our reach geographically, provides more opportunities for our employees, and aligns with our future growth plans for the business.”

Founded in 1986, BCCI Construction Company is a full-service construction company with offices in San Francisco and Mountain View, California. The firm's building expertise, integrated service offerings, and portfolio of ground up, major renovation, historic restoration, tenant improvements, and sustainable projects have made BCCI one of the leading general construction firms in California. Notable BCCI clients include Google, Adobe, Accenture, Bosch and Veritas Technologies.

“We have been looking to expand to the West Coast for some time,” says STO CEO Robert Mullen. “BCCI provides the market reputation, service offering and premier client list STO was looking for and shares our same core values and client-first way of doing business.”

Some of the recent projects BCCI has partnered on with STO include the San Jose and San Francisco offices for Deloitte, the San Francisco office for Marsh & McLennan Companies, multiple Bay Area offices for Fidelity Investments, and the regional headquarters for Stryker Communications in a newly constructed ground-up building in Texas.

“BCCI is well known not only for their expertise on highly complex ground-up and interiors projects but also as a leader in sustainable construction,” says James Donaghy, STO executive chairman. “With both of our firms pioneering green building strategies and wellness in the built environment, we're excited to have BCCI join the STO family of companies to further strengthen the innovative approaches we can offer our clients.”

GIS's business model focuses on empowering diverse businesses, their people, and unique culture while creating opportunities for employee ownership to ensure long-term sustainable, profitable growth across its platform of companies. As a result of the merger, all BCCI employees will now have an opportunity to participate in an employee stock purchase program through GIS and become even more invested in BCCI's future and the success of all GIS partner firms.

BCCI will retain its name, logo and cultural identity, and its current leaders will maintain their roles as the senior leadership team as well as an ownership interest in the business. It is anticipated that new job opportunities will be created as a result of the merger to support the company's projected growth for 2019 and beyond.
